Hammerich descendant Carsten Seiffert wrote as follows:

«Die Hammerichs in Nettelsee haben dort über Generationen in der klösterlichen Ziegelei gearbeitet. Ich zitiere: "(...) die ehemalige Klösterliche Ziegelei Nettelsee, in etwa 6 Kilometer Luftlinie südwestlich von Preetz gelegen, (...) bestand vom Ende des Dreißigjährigen Krieges bis 1847 und dann bis 1918 als Ziegelei Nettelsee. In dieser langen Zeitperiode wurde sie ausschließlich von Zieglern mit dem Namen Hammerich betrieben, deren Vorfahren aus Schlesien in das nach dem Dreißigjährigen Krieg weitgehend menschenleere Land kamen." (aus: "Die ehemalige Klösterliche Ziegelei Nettelsee" von Dr. Eberhard Strehl, im "Jahrbuch für Heimatkunde im Kreis Plön", 44. Jahrgang, 2014)."

Translation: The Hammerich in Nettelsee [Schleswig-Holstein] have been working there for generations in the brickworks of the monastery [https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Preetz_Priory]. Carsten Seiffert quotes «Die ehemalige Klösterliche Ziegelei Nettelsee" von Dr. Eberhard Strehl, im "Jahrbuch für Heimatkunde im Kreis Plön", 44. Jahrgang, 2014» as follows: «(...)the former monasterial brickworks Nettelsee, situated about 6 km air-line distance southwest from Preetz, (..) existed from the end of the Thirty Years War until 1847 and afterwards as brickworks Nettelsee until 1918. During this long period of time it was exclusively operated by brickmakers named Hammerich whose ancestors had come from Silesia after the Thirty Years War into the nearly deserted land."

Hereafter you will find some proofs of the above genealogical data:

3) Entry No. 31 of 1810: Birth of Carl Johann Heinrich Hammerich on July 21, 1810, christened on July 25, 1810, son of master carpenter Johann Benedict Hammerich in Dassow and Johanna Maria Ilsebe, born Dosen.
